

Cambridgeshire road tests one.network's Traffic Replay

Current Use

Cambridgeshire County Council uses one.network's Traffic Replay module to accelerate and transform its decision-making process. We catch up with Richard Burnett, who manages road events and the Integrated Highway Management Centre (IHMC) at Cambridgeshire County Council.

"Within Cambridgeshire, the IHMC uses a suite of one.network modules to help us deliver our network monitoring solution, while also keeping the public and our partners informed of any incidents or potential issues.

"Traffic Replay has proved invaluable across the county"

"One of the latest tools we use is Traffic Replay, which has dramatically filled a gap in our service provision by providing an easy-to-use, graphic-based product that lets us answer any queries about previous performance on the network instantaneously, on many occasions disproving myths about serious congestion issues - as well as occasionally confirming them.

"This has proved invaluable across the county, but especially within Cambridge itself, which is a challenging city for geographical reasons as well as because of the new development at present.

"The IHMC is responsible for liaising with event organisers, and granting licences or Temporary Traffic Regulation Orders (TTROs) for any event that will affect the highway network. Again, Traffic Replay is incredibly useful for gauging what's happened with previous events at the same locations, informing our decision-making process.

Future Vision

The next step is rolling the module out to the Streetworks & Permitting Team to help them grant works licences and permits, as well as working more closely with the Major Infrastructure Development and Project Teams to add this module to their arsenal.

Traffic Replay will also be used by the Traffic Manager to answer queries by Councillors and Directors in high-level meetings instantly rather than after the fact, again speeding up the decision-making process.
